HOME COURSE IN SCIENTIFIC AGRICULTURE

FIFTH ARTICLE — HOME VEGETABLE GARDEN.

By W. R. BEATTIE, Assistant Horticulturist, Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture.

BY means of the home garden the production of the vegetable supply for the family is directly under control and in many cases is the only way whereby clean, fresh produce may be secured.

A FINE HEAD OF CAULIFLOWER.

ent location every five or six years. A gentle slope toward the south or southeast is most desirable for the production of early crops. It is an advantage to have protection on the north and northwest.

Good natural drainage of the garden area is of prime importance. The land should have sufficient fall to drain off surplus water during heavy rains, but it should not be so great that the soil will be washed. The surface of the garden should not contain depressions. Waste water from surrounding land should not flow toward the garden, and the fall below should be such that there will be no danger of flood water backing up. The garden should not be located along the banks of a stream that will be liable to overflow during the growing season.

A good fence around the garden plot is almost indispensable.

Where the work is to be done mainly by means of horse tools the arrangement should be such as to give the longest possible rows, and straight out, lines should be followed. For hand cultivation the arrangement can be quite different. Horse cultivation is recommended whenever possible.

The second matter for consideration is the location of permanent crops and small fruits. The area devoted to the hotbed, cold frame and seed bed should be decided upon, but these may be shifted more or less from year to year or located in some convenient place outside of the garden. If a part of the land is low and moist, such crops as celery, onions and late cumpsters should be placed there. If part of the soil is high, warm and dry, that is the proper location for early crops and those that need quick, warm soil. The land may be occupied at all times.

There are very few soils that are not improved by some form of drainage. Autumn is the time for plowing hard or stiff clay soils, especially if in a part of the country where freezing takes place. Sandy loams and soils that contain a large amount of humus may be plowed in the spring, but the work should be done early in order that the soil may settle before planting. In the southern states this process must be accomplished by means of frequent cultivations. It is desirable to plow the garden early.

Sandy soils will bear plowing much earlier than heavy clay soils. In the garden greater depth of plowing should be practiced than for ordinary farm crops. Subsoiling will be found advantageous in most cases. Hand spading should be resorted to only in very small gardens or where it is desirable to prepare a small area very thoroughly.

After plowing the next important step is to smooth and pulverize the soil. The pulverizing process should extend as deep as the plowing. Some gardeners prefer to cut the land thoroughly with a disk harrow before plowing, so that when it is turned by the plow the bottom soil will be fine and mellow. After the plow the disk or cutting harrow is again brought into play and the pulverizing process completed. If the soil is a trifle too dry and contains lumps it may be necessary to use a roller or clod crusher.

For garden crops there is no fertilizer that will compare with good, well rotted barnyard manure. Chicken, pigeon and sheep manures rank high as fertilizers. The manure from geese is especially adapted for dropping in the hills or rows of plants. Market gardeners frequently apply 2,000 pounds of high grade fertilizer per acre each year.

Many of the garden seeds lose their vitality after one year's time.

Throughout the northern states it is desirable to start plants of certain crops before the danger of frost has passed. The simplest method of starting a limited number of early plants is by means of a shallow box placed in a south window of the dwelling. After the plants appear the box should be turned each day to prevent the plants drawing toward the light.

The most common method of starting early plants in the north is by means of a hotbed. In the north the hotbed should be started in February or early in March. It is desirable to have a supply of straw or loose manure on hand to throw over the bed in case of extremely cold weather.

During bright days the hotbed will heat very quickly from the sunshine on the glass, and it will be necessary to ventilate during the early morning by slightly raising the sash on the opposite side from the wind. Care should be taken in ventilating to protect the plants from a draft of cold air. To ward evening close the sash.

Hotbeds should be watered on bright days and in the morning only. After watering, the bed should be well vented.

In the north the use of the cold frame is for hardening off plants that have been started in the hotbed, preparatory to setting them in the garden. In the south the cold frame is made to take the place of the hotbed in starting early plants.

Good soil for a seed bed, a specially prepared place for starting plants, consists of one part of well rotted manure, two parts of good garden loam or rotted sods and one part of sharp, fine sand. The manure should be thoroughly rotted, but it should not have been exposed to the weather and the strength leached out of it. The addition of leaf mold or peat will tend to make the soil better adapted for seed bed purposes. Mix all the ingredients together in a heap, stirring well with a shovel, after which the soil should be sifted and placed in boxes or in the bed ready for sowing the seed.

Weed seeds and the spores of fungous diseases may be killed by placing the soil in pans and baking it for an hour in a hot oven.

No definite rule can be given for the depth to which seeds should be planted. In all cases the depth should be uniform. The seed bed should be neither dry nor too wet.

Plants grown in a house, hotbed or cold frame will require to be hardened off before planting in the garden. Hardening off is usually accomplished by ventilating freely and by reducing the amount of water applied to the plant bed. The plant bed should not become too dry.

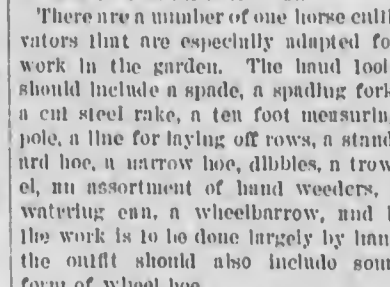

Some plants require protection from the direct rays of the sun in summer or from cold in winter, and there are many that need special protection while they are quite small. Seedlings of many of the garden crops are unable to force their way through the crust formed on the soil after heavy rains, and it is necessary either to break the crust with a steel rake or soften it by watering.

For protecting plants from cold in winter several kinds of materials are used, such as burlap, cloth, pine boughs, straw, manure or leaves. There are a number of crops of a tropical nature that may be grown far north, provided they are properly protected during the winter.

Several of the annual crops can be matured much earlier in the spring if they are planted in the autumn and protected during the winter. A mulch of manure, straw or leaves forms a good protection, but care should be taken that the mulch does not contain seeds.

Frequent shallow cultivation should be employed for most garden crops, and during dry weather the depth should not exceed two inches. By keeping the surface soil well stirred what is termed a "dust mulch" is formed, and this layer of finely divided soil will become quite dry. It prevents the escape of moisture through the pores of the soil. A mulch consisting of fine manure, clippings from the lawn or any similar material, spread to a distance of ten or twelve inches around the plants, will preserve the moisture, but the mulch should not be so heavy as to exclude the air.

A crust forming over the soil after a rain or watering is detrimental to plant growth and should be broken up as soon as the land can be worked. To determine when the soil is sufficiently dry for cultivation apply the usual test of squeezing in the hand. If the soil adheres in a ball it is too wet.

There are a number of one horse cultivators that are especially adapted for work in the garden. The hand tools should include a spade, a spading fork, a cut steel rake, a ten foot measuring pole, a line for laying off rows, a standard hoe, a narrow hoe, dibbles, a trowel, an assortment of hand weedeers, a watering can, a wheelbarrow, and if the work is to be done largely by hand the outfit should also include some form of wheel hoe.

In the control of insects and diseases that infest garden crops it is often possible to accomplish a great amount of good by careful sanitary management. In the autumn any refuse that remains should be gathered and placed in the compost heap or burned if diseased or infested with insects. Several of the garden insects find protection during the winter under boards and any loose material that may remain in the garden. Dead vines or leaves of plants are frequently covered with disease spores and should be burned.

SCHOOL NOTES

Breezy Items of Our School by the Normal Instructor

Three weeks till the May examination! How near ready are you for it? You who live in the country and intend to take the examination could spend the three weeks very profitably here with the large class that is working so hard for the coming event. Most all of our work is now review, having passed through most of the text books and we are now driving and clinching nails in the sticking plate of memory so that the winter's work will tell, not only for life's duties and responsibilities, but a high grade in the examination as well. We invite you in the country to come and join us and get better grades.

We take this opportunity to remind all the friends of the school that the Normal Department will give a play, the most laughable that has ever been given in the town, for the benefit of the school, in the court house, Friday night, May 16, and we will be very glad to see you all there. It has been our intention all the winter to give this play, the object of which is to pay the rent of the K. of P. and Odd Fellow's hall that our department has used for the most of the term, but it seemed that there was always something being given for which the town had to pay and we could not find room for the play that most needed to be given. Those of you who are most interested in the finances of the school should aid us in our effort to lessen the tax burden of the district, and come yourself and induce others to come and see this play, for it will be a rare treat for which any one will be glad to pay the small admission fee of ten and fifteen cents. Please help us to help the school.

We also remind the fans of the town that on next Saturday the Cannel City Reds will come to our town for their usual sacrifice on the ball diamond. Our boys went to Cannel City, last Saturday to play them, but the rain continued so that they could not play, and while there it was agreed for the Reds to come here next Saturday. Now, we do not like the spirit of the home fans in regard to expressing their appreciation of a game financially. We have brought two teams here this season and given you an opportunity to see the games, which most of you did, but when it came to paying the visiting team's expenses, as is the custom here, we found that the boys who played had to put up most of the money. Now, this is not right. If the home players can afford to buy gloves, bats, balls, masks and protectors and then do all the practicing necessary to make you feel good by seeing the home team win, it should appeal to you enough to pay the expense of the visiting team. We are going to have tickets to sell Saturday to all who wish to see this game and we hope that you will be glad to help the boys of the home team at least a dime's worth. If you can not afford to pay ten cents to see a good ball game at home, you are not much of a "dead game sport." Make up your mind that this is one time when you are not going to be stingy, but that you are going to open up and get liberal and help the home team out a whole dime's worth. The spirit manifested Saturday will determine whether you will have any more chances to see games at home this season, for if you do not want to see the games the home team is going to visit the other fellows and play away instead of at home.

We will miss our guess very much if the town is not full of country visitors Saturday and they always help out in expense. We are always glad to welcome other negroes jointly indicted them. It seems to us that the merchants of this town would see the wisdom of having games at home since it always brings in extra dollars for them. In most other towns the merchants always help pay expenses of visiting teams, but here it seems that our merchants can not see where it helps them.

We will measure your appreciation of the game next Saturday by the amount you help out and then we will be governed accordingly hereafter.

If you have not got your ticket before you go to the game, you will find some one at the gates with tickets from whom you can buy one and then go in and enjoy the game by knowing you help to hold it up.

The Taxpayers' Troubles.

The annual wrangle is at hand. The election of the graded school trustees takes place Saturday, and the woods are full of candidates. And here's where the taxpayers' troubles begin. Each candidate feels that he is the panacea for the trouble.

That there must be a divorce between the high school and the graded school seems to be the general determination. It does not, however, require the election of trustees pledged to that idea. The appropriation of the taxes of the graded school district for the support of the high school all along has been in defiance of law and could have been prevented by any taxpayer by a suit.

Since this question can not be a matter at issue, there must, of necessity, be some other motives behind the candidacy of the men running for trustees. The deal by which the separation of the two schools is to be consummated is important. Even now it is being urged that the district give its property to the county in consideration of the county assuming the indebtedness of the district. That policy would be fatal, for any taxpayer could compel the levy and collection of taxes to build another school house. Or, some future superintendent could require it. Then there would be the danger of going back to a common, ungraded school. There would be nothing wrong in selling a site for a high school building to the county, but to give away the entire property would be folly. Mr. Taxpayer, it behooves you to smoke the candidates out on this proposition.

Another thing that will be kept in the background, yet is the most potent factor in the race, is who are to be the teachers. I know that most of the candidates will say that they have no one in view and are running for "the good of the district," but I wouldn't believe a tale like that if I told it myself. Everyone of them have some one in view for some position in the school. Any other course of reasoning would be silly. Then, why not spread the cards upon the table and let us all see the deal.

Usually it is not a good thing to make the teacher an issue, but in this case there is a teacher—a d d he is not seeking the school—whom fully ninety per cent of the patrons of the graded school. Why not let the sentiment of the district be expressed at the election and quit dodging behind subterfuges that are so palpably transparent that every one smiles at them.

But the important thing is to elect trustees who will not give the district property away.

"Shine" Brown Electrocuted.

"Shine" Brown, the negro who confessed to the murder of deputy sheriff Hart, of Clark county, at Winchester last fall, paid the penalty of his crime in the electric chair at Eldridgeville last Friday morning. Brown, in his confession, exonerated the other negroes jointly indicted with him, saying that he alone was guilty of the murder.

In Splendid Condition.

J. B. Chenault, Bank Examiner, was here last week going over the books and checking up the accounts of the Commercial Bank, and after he had finished his work he volunteered the information to different persons that he had never examined a bank in his life which he found in better shape. In fact he said that everything about the institution was as correct as could be—that he had never seen a better kept set of books.

This voluntary statement by the examiner is a high tribute to the honesty and efficiency of Messrs. W. A. Duncan and D. S. Henry, Cashier and Assistant Cashier, respectively, and ought to be encourage those who are not doing business with the bank to open an account at once where they may rest assured that their money will be safe and that they will be extended every courtesy.

An Example of Enterprise.

Herbert Henry of the enterprising firm of E. Henry & Sons, Index, came in Monday and brought the copy for a change of the firm's ad and also had us print their ad on a thousand wrappers. This is a push and enterprise which could be profitably emulated by every merchant in the county and one which is sure to bring returns.

Mr. Henry told us that he was establishing a "Farmer's Circulating Library." He is collecting all the best works on agriculture, horticulture, dairying, stock and poultry raising together with the bulletins from the Agricultural colleges and the standard farm papers. These he proposes to keep in a library at their store and let them out to farmers in the neighborhood on a rental basis. When a farmer has read one work he returns it and gets another, and so on till he has read and studied the entire collection.

Such a scheme is fraught with tremendous possibilities for good and every farmer within reach ought to take advantage of it, and not only read the book but put the knowledge gained thereby into practice.

Oil Outlook Steadily Improving.

While there have been no new oil or gas wells brought in in the county for the last few days the outlook is certainly bright and is improving all the time. The general tone and trend of matters is encouraging and strangers are wandering down from Cannel City to West Liberty giving the people here the impression that "ere long there will be things doing in these 'diggins.'" Work will soon begin on a well on the J. S. Carter farm just above the bridge and rumor has it that work will soon begin just below town, possibly within the city limits. Leases are being taken and territory acquired in nearly every part of the county and before the year is old we confidently expect to see every section of the county developed.

More Development Promised.

Dr. Elmer Northcutt, of Richmond, was in town last week to look over the oil situation. He will, if he secures the territory, do some drilling near town. Dr. Northcutt is a developer, not a lease speculator, and if he gets a sufficient amount of territory he will test it thoroughly. He has the belief that ultimately it will be found that the most prolific oil producing strata in Kentucky is the Trenton rock, and that the real oil fields of Kentucky will not be known until that strata is thoroughly tested.

We're All A-Fishin'.

Pop says that this world we live in Is one big fishin' pond An' we've all been fishin' fer somethin' Since th' time the first day dawned.

He sez some are fishin' fer trouble, An' others are fishin' fer fame, An' the banks of life are alive with girls A-fishin' to change their names.

He sez the grafters are fishin' fer suckers, Newly weds are fishin' fer bliss, Ministers are fishin' fer soul to save, The lover to hook a kiss.

He sez the vain ones are fishin' fer compliments, The bums are fishin' fer booze, The nabobs are fishin' fer diamonds and things, The poor fer food and shoes.

He sez we are at it all of the time, A-fishin' fer what we wish, So, w'en I'm not really a-fishin' fer fish, I'm fishin' to fish fer fish.

—Frank Leet, in Cincinnati Post.

Mans Limitations.

Man is a pretty wise animal. He has solved many problems, and as a result he is mighty puffed up. But he has his limitations. He can figure out the fraction of a second when a certain planet will cross the path of another planet—

But he hasn't yet learned why birds migrate or how they fly. He can put a lot of wheels together and generate a force he calls electricity, and with it he can preform wonders—

But he doesn't know what electricity is, or why it is. He can generate power at a given point, convey it hundreds of miles over a slender wire, and with it light a metropolis.

But he has never been able to discover how a lightning bug or a glow worm generates light without heat.

Ac can build towering buildings, huge cathedrals, giant ships and immense bridges across broad and turbulent streams

But he cannot make an egg, nor explain why the inside of a water-melon is red, the outside green and the seeds black.

He can navigate the ocean and is beginning to navigate the air—

But he cannot stay the ocean's tide nor divert the currents of the air.

Just about the time he gets puffed up so big over his conquest of nature that he is just about to explode with a loud report, old Mother Nature smiles and hands him a jolt that knocks all the wind out of him. He is pretty big to be sure, but compared with what he hasn't done, what he has done is as a grain of sand to the bulk of the universe.—Bryan's Commoner.

Confederates Reunion.

Perhaps the last pilgrimage they will make as a body to the famous battle grounds of Lookout Mtn., Chickamauga and Missionary Ridge, will be the 1913 Reunion of the United Confederate Veterans, May 27-29th. The railroads of the Southeastern Passenger Association have made a thirty day rate of a cent a mile. The War Dept. has loaned the requisite number of tents and cots in order that Chattanooga may suitably care for the 15,000 Veterans who are expected to attend, and who will be lodged and fed free of all cost.

The United Sons of Veterans will hold their reunion at the same place, May 27-29. They will bring with them the usual bevy of beautiful Southern women, as sponsors, maids of honor and chaperones, all of whom will be lavishly entertained by the citizens of Chattanooga.

Enthusiasm and interest never ran so high in the South over the annual reunion of the battle scarred veterans whose spectacular parade at Chattanooga is expected to be viewed by over one hundred thousand visitors in that city of like population.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that on the 12th day of May, 1913, the undersigned will present to the Hon. I. C. Ferguson, judge of the Morgan County Court, a petition in which said court will be asked to cause a public road to be opened in Morgan County, Kentucky, beginning at the terminus of the Ezel and Menifee road, near the Mouth of Black Water, and running in an eastward direction through the lands of Bill Cox James Peyton, Ned Hurley, Allen Cox, Jesse Barnett, W. T. Barnett, J. W. Crouch, and C. N. Chaney and terminating at the Cottle school house. Said petition will request the said court to appoint commissioners and make all orders and judgements and grant all proper relief in the premises.

Woman Doctor is Chief Fly-swatter

Dr. Jean Dawson, of Cleveland, Ohio, is the boss fly-swatter of this country. Not only does she swat flies, of which she is the sworn and devoted enemy, but she has all the school children swatting them and has all so enlisted the newspapers in the good work. She is head of the biology department of the public schools and so is able to get in "ducative fly-swatting work on he youngsters. She has made Cleveland the most nearly flyless city in the country.—Ex.

Advertisement For Bids

On Monday May 12 1913, and up to 12 o'clock of that day, I, at my office in the court house in West Liberty, Kentucky, will receive bids for the building of abutments to the following bridges: Elk Fork bridge, Day Fork bridge, Index bridge, Grassy bridge at the Chapel and the bridge across Caney, near the mouth of Stacy Fork. Plans and specifications may be had by applying to me after May 5. The right to reject any and all bids is hereby retained and the successful bidder will be prepared to fill bond in a sum equal to the amount of his bid. 151-21. EVERT MATHEIS, County Road Engineer.

Notice of Dissolution.

In accordance with the provisions of Section No. 561, Kentucky Statutes, the public is hereby notified that the stockholders of the Home Oil Company, of Cannel City, Ky., at a special meeting held at the office of the company on April 22, 1913, adopted a resolution directing a dissolution of the company. Clean the streets and alleys and incidentally the vacant lots.

Troubles, like chickens, come home to roost and sometimes they don't have to travel far.

It isn't just exactly summer yet but there's something in the air that's mighty close akin to it.

Confucius might not have been a greater philosopher than some of our modern wise ones but he was evidently of a more practical turn of mind.

Slowly but steadily the straw votes are coming in. It may be that, as in other voting contests, some one is holding back and preparing to spring a surprise in the wind-up.

God pity the man who is not courageous enough to do what he conscientiously believes to be right. There are a great many kinds of cowards, but a moral coward is the most despicable of them all.

And yet no financial statement of the town's affairs has been published. Tax-collecting time will soon be here and they'll be after us for more money. Since strikes are so popular now, let's go on a strike and refuse to pay any more taxes until they show us what they do with it.

The grand jury, in its reports at the close of each session of court, usually makes some recommendations which if carried out would be of benefit to the community. Wonder if it would not help matters some to have it recommend to the city dads that they publish a financial statement of the town of West Liberty?

It has never been satisfactorily explained to us why the citizens of the United States, with all their boasted powers of mind and strength of body and character, were not able to hold their own with the much despised foreigner without having a tariff wall thrown around them so damned high as to make the Chinese wall look like a mole run.

Instead of our citizens going to other places to celebrate the Fourth of July, why shouldn't we have some attractions for the day and get the crowd here?
Highland Park is an ideal place for a day's recreation, and if the citizens would get together and secure some good attractions we could have two thousand people here the Fourth. Will some one gently poke the Commercial Club and wake it up? Why should West Liberty not offer the people a gala day as well as other places?

No! I am not penitent over my attitude toward the churches of West Liberty, as was suggested by one of the good members a few days ago. I am only keeping still because I know full well that when the church people do any one a wrong they never forgive the person whom they have wronged. Their hatred of the person wronged is implacable.
They think because he is an individual and they a great big collective body that he ought to come crawling and begging before their feet and beseech them to forgive him for the outrage THEY have perpetrated.

So don't get the idea that I am licked. I only promised to be good so long as I was let alone.
There are some people, even in the churches, who prefer harmony to discord and broils, especially when they know full well, and some of them have acknowledged to me, that I am in the right and that all the argument is on my side.
Again let me repeat: "Don't think that I have weakened in the least." You have no room in your cranium for such an idea as that. When you can't possibly let me alone any longer just say so and into it we'll go.

The merchant who does not advertise, lets the newspaper and the public spirited citizens build up the county, reaches in and takes out his share of the profits which come with prosperity and the influx of population and then and then chortles to himself over his good luck. He shares in the enjoyment of something he didn't help to create. He is not willing to give his county paper the credit to which it is justly entitled. He knows that it is boosting industries and enterprises which enable him to continue in business, but rather than contribute a modicum toward the support of the paper he will actually deny that it is factor for good in the community.

But the days of the non-advertising merchant are numbered.
The footprints of the public are turned in another direction.
The beaten path (if there ever was one) which led to his store is becoming narrower and yet narrower. For long it will become entirely grass-o'-ergrown and will exist only in memory.

Politics is an interesting subject and one which you can always find some one to discuss with you, but wouldn't it be a good idea for our business men and politicians to take an hour off occasionally and talk about organizing a County Fair Association? Morgan county needs the enterprise; we have the money and the brains; who will take the lead?

WASHINGTON NEWS LETTER.

Washington, D. C., April 17, 1913 President Wilson, is pleased with the reception that has been given to the new tariff bill. He does not expect, its passage to result in a great reduction of the cost of living. Consumers, will get the benefit of sugar at once, as that industry is in shape for active competition as soon as the duty is taken off. He does believe that the new law will gradually break down the combinations which stand between producers and consumers which artificially keep prices high. He is convinced that the reductions will not be so great as to seriously embarrass any legitimate business, and that, the removal of the duty will not be ruinous to the wool industry because the price of wool is about the same abroad.

In financial circles there is much discussion as to the probable extent of business reaction.
It is said that trade is in sound position with no speculative buying, the crop outlook is good, and that the Wilson attitude is progressive, rather than radical.

Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, is urging the 'advisory selection of a judge' to be recommended for appointment as district judge of that State, in which a vacancy exists. There are twelve candidates, and it is feared by democrats that an advisory election might result in a republican.

Republicans in the Senate are considering whether to make a fight against Wilson's nominations to fill the 1200 vacancies caused by democratic opposition to Taft's appointments. Senators Root and Townsend are trying to get their colleague in line, but many oppose retaliatory action, seeing already enough trouble a't hand.

The sundry civil bill containing a provision exempting labor unions and cooperative associations of farmers from prosecution under the Sherman anti-trust act, and vetoed in the last Congress on that account by Taft, has been reintroduced in the House.
It is understood that President Wilson is not opposed to this measure, and if The Attorney General holds it is constitutional, it is probable that it will be passed.

Postmaster General Barleson has held a conference with officers of the National One-Cent Letter Postage Association on reducing the latter to one cent for two ounces. A comprehensive investigation of the whole subject is planned.
The 22nd Continental Congress of the daughters of the American Revolution was held in Washington. At the opening meeting the President made an address, and Mrs. Wilson and other distinguished women occupied boxes. There was a lively fight on between the supporters of the candidates for president-general of the society.

The opponents of woman suffrage are making a strong fight to dislodge the "cause" from whatever favor it has found in the District of Columbia by holding wavering members of Congress and strengthening the opponents.

Representatives of the National Association opposed to women suffrage will appear before the Senate committee, of which Senator Thomas is chairman; meetings will be held throughout the city in opposition to the movement.

In the latter part of last month the American Commission on agriculture sailed for Europe to investigate farmers' banking systems and cooperative buying and selling associations of fourteen European countries. Frank Page, son of the American Ambassador to London, will accompany the commission on it tour.

KENTUCKY HAVING BRISK AWAKENING

Everywhere in State Things Are Happening.

NEW SCHOOLS BEING BUILT.

As Fast as Laws Are Passed For the Betterment of Rural Schools Counties Take Advantage of Them—Secure Services of Experts and Select Teachers More Carefully.

There never was a time in the history of the old commonwealth when its future looked as bright as it does in this year of 1913. No matter where one goes in the length and breadth of the state one hears schools being discussed. Many new buildings are being erected in the place of those which have so long been a disgrace to the communities that have permitted them to exist.

Plans are being discussed in many localities for larger grounds and better equipment. The teachers are being more carefully selected than in the past, and there is a general feeling that school problems should be fairly met and solved.

This feeling has resulted in marked activity in educational matters in all sections of the state. The county authorities have taken advantage of the new educational laws without delay.

The last legislature passed a law allowing county boards of education to provide supervisors to oversee the work done in the schools. At once over forty counties took advantage of the new law, and secured the services of one or more experts to assist the county superintendent in this supervisory work.

Davies county decided to try a rather unique plan of supervision, which seems to have worked admirably during the school year that has just closed.
Instead of striving to reach the 105 small schools scattered over a large county that is often cut to pieces by swollen streams that flow through that hollow lands the board of education decided to have fifteen supervisors.

These supervisors were all teachers of strong personality and wide experience. All of them held first class certificates and had had normal training.

A SUPERVISOR'S SCHOOL.

Of course there was not enough supervision over 105 schools to keep fifteen supervisors busy, so each of them taught his or her own little school out in the county. If the supervisor had taught from Monday through Friday there would have been no time for visiting the other six schools in his group.

The plan outlined for this school year has been for the supervising teacher to hold school from Tuesday through Saturday, thus leaving Monday open for visiting the other schools.
By visiting three schools each Monday the supervising teacher would be able to reach all six schools once every two weeks. This makes it possible for the county superintendent to have a report from an expert from every portion of the county twice a month.

With the supervisor handling a small group, and roads cannot make the work impossible, or, there is also the added advantage that at the opening of the school year, when many young and rather inexperienced teachers are in great need of help, the supervisor is close at hand to give the required assistance.

Close and constant supervision is the price of success in any business, and our hilly scattered rural schools are no exception. We have not got the returns from our expenditure of money on our rural schools because there was no supervision to learn where the leaks were and how they might be stopped or repaired.

Money and money in any amount needed will come as soon as supervision makes the public know that results will be obtained. Our children have been taught in any fashion that suited the individual that was in the neighborhood "keepin' school." Naturally the children did not know what was the matter when they failed to make suitable progress; neither did their parents.

Every one knew that the interest of both the children and their parents hinged. They also knew that many of the older children dropped out of school because they were thoroughly discouraged.

Reports from county superintendents all over the state show that there is a new spirit both in the teaching force and among the children under this new influence of supervision. It is a simple proposition. It is that both teachers and children are becoming conscious of definite work that is being done in a thoroughly systematic manner.

No, no, citizen, to quarrel between us. We are good friends. The issue between us is not sufficient to warrant a quarrel. Each of us want the same kind of men for office. A little technical difference in phraseology and definitions is about all. The difference is so small, let's do like the lawyer and the preacher. Once a preacher said to a lawyer, do you ever make any mistakes in your pleadings? Yes says the lawyer. What do you do with them? I they are serious I correct them and if they are small I let them go. Do you ever make any mistakes in preaching said the lawyer? Yes said the preacher. What do you do with them? I dispose of them about the same you do. If they are serious I correct them and if small I let them go and continued the preacher. I was once preaching and I ment to say that the devil was the father of the liars, and I made a mistake and said that the devil was the father of lawyers and the mistake was so small I just let it go. This little story about explains the difference between citizen and Fair Play. I will take citizen's exegesis on the qualification of men for Justice of the peace. Men are trying to impose themselves on the good citizens of our country and demanding their votes, pledging themselves to execute the law, if elected who are habitual law breakers by getting drunk every week and probably swearing to execute the law. It is true there are some accomplished lawyers that are not fit material for office, nor scarcely anything else, not possessing the first qualification morality and honesty. We need for our officers well qualified, honest, discreet, sober and broad minded financiers. We have plenty of them if we elect such men as citizen compares to the long eared tribe and we get kicked into bankruptcy it is as good as we deserve. Lets all look well to our financial affairs. FAIR PLAY.

Fatal to Young Girl

"My daughter, when thirteen years old, was stricken with heart trouble. She was so bad we had to place her bed near a window so she could get her breath. One doctor said, 'Poor child, she is likely to fall dead any time.' A friend told me Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy had cured her father, so I tried it, and she began to improve. She took a great many bottles, but she is cured to me today, a fat, rosy checked girl. No one can imagine the confidence I have in Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy." A. R. CANON, Worth, Mo.

The unbounded confidence Mr. Canon has in Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is shared by thousands of others who know its value from experience. Many heart disorders yield to treatment, if the treatment is right. If you are bothered with short breath, fainting spells, swelling of feet or ankles, pains about the heart and shoulder blades, palpitation, weak and hungry spells, you should begin using Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy at once. Profit by the experience of others while you may.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is sold and guaranteed by all druggists.

$100 REWARD, $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any cure that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
